

CLOSE FINISHES AT JUAREZ TRACK

Favorites Capture Four of the Events—Jockey Cavanaugh Draws a Suspension.

Juarez, Dec. 12.—The racing here this afternoon was characterized by close finishes, and the sport witnessed was the best of the week. Weather and track conditions were ideal and the attendance was remarkably good. Favorites succeeded in four of the events, and the form players enjoyed a fairly good day.

The stable of W. E. Applegate furnished two of the winners in Dutch and Gilly. Both were heavily supported and won in clever fashion. Lucille Allen, winner of the fourth, was bought $200 over her entered price by F. Kessinger. Her owner retained her with the customary $1 bid.

Jockey Cavanaugh drew a suspension of five days for disobedience at the post in the third. Summary:

FIRST RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Sharp-shoot, 5 to 1; second, Maudie, 5 to 1; third, Duke Van Zandt, 5 to 1; fourth, Time, 1:28. Jockey, Robert H. Kite W. Holsen, and King Stewart also won.

SAUSAGE MAN FINED FOR SHOWING TOO MUCH INTEREST IN DOGS

New Brunswick, N. J., Dec. 12.—William Rupperecht, driver of a sausage wagon, was fined $5 by Recorder Moughton today for following Thomas Dutton, Newark's official dog catcher, and hindering him in his work.

"I can't go anywhere without this man following me," complained Dutton. "I can't catch dogs with him dogging my steps."

Rupperecht said he only "wanted to see how he does it."

"For a sausage man," said the Recorder, "you are too much interested in dogs. Dog catching and sausage-making are two separate businesses. I fine you $5."

USE WOMEN TO DO NIGHT WORK

Utica Textile Mill Admits "Experiment" Has Proven a "Business" Success.

PERFORM DUTIES MEN FIND TOO IRKSOME

Factories Not Inspected and Not Fireproof Among Other Revelations.

Utica, N. Y., Dec. 12.—As an "experiment" women are used at night work in Utica's textile works doing toll that men find too irksome. This was brought out during the testimony of one of the employees, Francis E. Kernan, before the State factory commission today. The women, Kernan said, are used in winding the immense spools. Men decline to stick to it and don't do the work half so well as the women.

"From the looks of it, then, the 'experiment' is panning out quite well," suggested Counsel Shintag.

"The women are steadier," asserted Kernan.

"Don't you think the State ought to step in and stop this experimenting with the women?"

"I don't think so, sir," was the reply.

"You think from the viewpoint of the women, that it is all right?" insisted the lawyer.

"Well, I try to look at it from the standpoint of the women," was the faltering reply. "If the State considers it wrong to have its women work at night, then the State ought to say so."

State May Intervene.

Commissioner Phillips said that in the commission's investigation elsewhere it had been found that the women work against their inclination, and the position of the commission is that the State ought to step in and prevent their working. "If they cannot find the way out themselves, the State will have to save them," added Mr. Phillips.

The commissioner spoke of some married women preferring night work, so their husbands, while at home, may tend the babies.

"But what kind of life do they get out of it? It is against every law of decency to allow this to go on."

From Kernan's evidence it developed that approximately 2,500 women are held down to night work in the Utica shops. They get from $5 to $10 a week for it. They are obliged to report at 7 o'clock at night and work clear through until 6 o'clock in the morning, with an hour for a midnight meal. Throughout the long hours of the night they are compelled to stand at the whirling spools and keep them fed. It is unappetizing work that wears down their nerves, that makes those who try to do it give up in despair.

Europe Ahead of United States.

"The men do it only half as well," was the way Kernan put it. "They can't make over $5 a week."

"Europe is way ahead of this country in its treatment of the working women," declared Commissioner Jackson. "We are far behind the times in this country, but if our Legislature can be prevailed upon to pass the laws we are framing New York State will take an advanced step."

Kernan raised objections to several bills proposed by the commission. He didn't approve the fireproof provisions. They were too drastic. The law concerning playing fireproofing of stairways he regarded as revolutionary.

"Let me tell you," he protested, "that not one factory in Utica is of fireproof construction."

"What?" exclaimed Commissioner Terner. "Do you mean that?"

"Precisely," was the reply. "but the insurance companies regard our factories as good risks."

Factories Not Inspected.

William L. Stebbins, inspector of buildings of Utica, amazed the commission when he admitted that, although he has been in his official job for eleven months, he has not inspected one factory. He said he left the factory inspection to his assistant, William J. James.

"Called to the stand, James said that he never went in to inspect a factory, and that no inspection of the Utica factories is made."

"The buildings in which thousands of men and women work may be unsafe, yet they don't inspect them," demanded Commissioner Jackson.

"We don't have time," replied James. The commission completed its special investigation with today's session. It adjourns next Monday in New York for its wind-up before reporting to the Legislature.

RYAN TELLS OF JEROME LETTER

Head of Iron Workers' Union Again Testifies in Dynamite Conspiracy Trial.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 12.—Frank M. Ryan, indicted president of the Iron Workers' International Union, was recalled to the witness stand in the dynamite conspiracy case this afternoon to explain this statement in a letter to J. J. McNamara January 6, 1906:

"I am sending you a copy of a letter I received from Jerome and I make this suggestion: If I am prevented in any way from conducting the affairs of the organization you will notify the first vice president to take charge."

The Jerome letter was from William Travers Jerome, then district attorney of New York. It read:

"I would like to see you alone or with your attorney at my office on Monday next."

Ryan, asked what he meant by that statement to McNamara, replied:

"I meant just what I said."

"Did you anticipate any arrest at that time?" asked Senator Kern for the defense.

Ryan said: "No."

Michael J. Hannan, indicted iron workers' secretary at Scranton, Pa., admitted on cross-examination that he wanted McNamara to send him money so he could pay the fines of local members whom he sent to "beat up" thirty non-union workers on a nonunion job.

Patrick J. Morris of St. Louis, was the eighth defendant to take the witness stand in his own defense. He is the Morris mentioned in the famous letter of President Ryan to McNamara, in which Ryan mentioned out jobs which later were dynamited. In that letter Ryan said:

"Let Morris look after Mount Vernon."
